21 ACADEMY

Masters in Human Resources Management

www.21Academy.education

Contents

2 The Academy

3 The Course

5 The Modules

8 Exit Awards

The Academy

21 Academy was founded in 2018. It is a Higher Education Institution licensed by the National Commission for Further and Higher Education with license number 2018-017.

The Academy has developed and delivered its own accredited courses such as Award in Company Law Fundamentals and Award in Anti Money Laundering & Funding of Terrorism.

It has also successfully delivered non-accredited courses such as the most sought-after course developed to date by the Academy, Course for Data Protection Officers/Leads. Other courses offered by the Academy include the 12 month long, Business & Human Resource Management course as well as the Diploma in Law.

The Academy is proud to have designed an Undergraduate Diploma in Business Administration which has been accredited at MQF Level 5 with 60 ECTS.

21 Academy also offers custom made inhouse training programmes for businesses as well as delivers training programmes at its own premises in Naxxar and online.

The Academy has also been successfully delivering an annual conference on the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR).

Students undertaking their studies at 21 Academy have recognised the cost-effectiveness of each programme and the flexibility as well as the expediency through which they are delivered.

The Academy's academic team consists of successful professionals who deliver the training on a part-time basis while at the same time gathering more experience practicing their profession. This helps to keep the training deliverables continuously updated.

The campus is in the historic village of Naxxar which is quite centrally located in the island. It is just a 25 minute but ride to the capital city Valletta, in close proximity to Malta's business hubs and bordering the island's entertainment venues.

MINISTRY FOR EDUCATION AND EMPLOYMENT

MQF MALTA QUALIFICATIONS FRAMEWORK

Masters in Human Resources Management

Modules

- Human Resource Management in Context
- HR Planning, Talent Acquisition, Retention and Reward Strategies
- Developing, Leading and Engaging People
- Employee Relations and Wellbeing
- Business Skills and Performance Management
- Coaching and Mentoring
- Research Methods
- Human Resource Management Research

- 8 modules
- 12 months
- MQF Level 7
- 90 ECTS

Entry Requirements

- A first degree at MQF Level 6 in HRM, business studies or any other subject (minimum second-class honours) and having a good command of English (written and spoken) – Minimum C1.

  OR
- Mature/Adult Learning Student subject to an interview by the Head of the Academy. Interview process will take into consideration the quality of the experience of the candidates as well as their command of English Language.

Methods of Assessment

Assessment will be based on Assignments, Portfolio, Reflective Reports, a Supervised Practical Session and Presentations

This Masters in Human Resources Management programme covers the key areas of the subject from a theoretical aspect while grounding it to the realities of today's world of work.

HRM is one of the key contributors within organisations, similar to other functions such as finance and information technology in view of the critical role that people play. Therefore, professional HRM is critical. Given that today's organisations operate within a constantly evolving competitive environment owing to changing economic, financial, demographic, and political landscapes, this course will help students acquire critical and comprehensive knowledge and insights.

This Masters in Human Resources Management programme covers the key areas of the subject from a theoretical aspect while grounding it to the realities of today's world of work.

In addition, students will develop critical HRM competences and adopt a multidisciplinary approach in areas related to talent acquisition, reward, people development, leadership, and engagement. Employee relations and wellbeing will be a critical aspect which in which students will acquire competence together with their specialised ability to contribute to an organisation's performance management system as well as, coaching and mentoring. The research aspect covered in the course will be crucial for students as it will enable them to critically analyse data and information in their decision-making situations and recommendations.

In the final analysis, students will be able to adopt a multi-disciplinary, objective, strategic and tactical mindset to serve as valid and key contributors to their respective organisations from a HRM perspective.

Human Resource Management in Context - 9 ECTS

HRM operates within an internal and external environmental context. There are forces and evolving trends that are reshaping work, the workforce and workplace. To be effective as an HR leader one must address these transformational changes. This module introduces students to the nature of HRM, related key models and the context within which it operates. It presents them with a clear understanding and appreciation of the impact of the social, economic, cultural, political, and technological dimensions on employers and the workplace. It demonstrates how the human resource function is affected by factors based on the nature of the respective organisations they will work in. This allows them to deliver effective HR strategies in line with the organisation's, industry sectorial and competitive realities. This module will also present the impact that HR can have on the organisation as well as the constraints which HR practitioners face. Furthermore, reference will be made to the international dimension of HRM.

HR Planning, Talent Acquisition, Retention and Reward Strategies – 9 ECTS

This module presents the diverse critical strategies and systems used in the different stages of the recruitment process to attract the right human capital in alignment with an organisation's strategic objectives. It will also present reward structures and compensation systems used in the marketplace. The module also delves deeply into diverse approaches used to retain the best talent as part of an overall people strategy.

Developing, Leading and Engaging People - 9 ECTS

This module presents different theories and models with respect to the management and development of people throughout their working journey. In the context of today's business and organisational realities, human resource practitioners and professionals are required to take a leading role and act as a champion in the people management agenda to drive value for the organisation. The importance of a leadership mindset by HR as well as people engagement theories and practices will be presented from a critical perspective.

Employee Relations and Wellbeing – 9 ECTS

This module presents and analyses the various employment relations aspects from a psychological, economic, and political point of view. It refers to modern theories and practices to explore how these are managed. The roles that the different actors / key stakeholders in employment relations in developed economies (with specific reference to the British context) play in this relationship will also be critically evaluated. Furthermore, the concept of how healthy human relations for the wellbeing of people, both practical and structural, are manifested and maintained in the world of work are explored.

Business Skills and Performance Management - 9ECTS

In this module, the various attributes and skills required to be a successful and an effective, influential leader will be presented and critically analysed. These include thinking and decision-making skills, problem-solving skills, teamworking and interpersonal skills, understanding financial information, managing budgets, and understanding the concept of digitisation, use of information, evolving technologies such as artificial intelligence and theory and practice of ethical and professional standards. Furthermore, the different theories, and practices of how to inspire individual and high team performance will be presented, linking it to strategic objectives and key performance indicators.

Coaching and Mentoring - 9 ECTS

This module provides students with the different aspects and steps involved in coaching and mentoring with specific reference to the reflective and transformative aspect including the underlying principles and theories in the attainment of professional standards, practical application levels besides others. Human resource professionals and practitioners tend to serve act as key coordinators and drivers in performance management. Hence coaching and mentoring of employees at different levels is a crucial element for people in HR management.

Research Methods - 6 ECTS

Research, analytics, and data management in HRM have become critical to the HR profession. This module covers the various stages involved in research from establishing research and analytics objectives to planning, reviewing previous research, research design and methodology, limitations, setting and articulating research questions, evaluation of types of evidence, techniques used in sampling and ensuring validity, analysis of data, report writing and presentation. This Module will also introduce students to research philosophies, choices, time horizons and ethical matters. It will also cover the technological and digital tools currently used in research.

Human Resource Management Research Project - 30 ECTS

This module provides students with an opportunity to make an in-depth study of a topic in which the student is particularly interested in within the field of HRM. They would identify a strategic business issue and link it to aspects of what they would have learnt through the module/s. Starting off by formulating a research question after thoroughly evaluating and understanding current research and literature, students will carry out their research based on secondary data and end through the analysis, critique, and presentation of findings. This will entail write up of a 12,000-word HR Management Research Report including well-backed by insights linking theory and data.

Visit Course Page - Click Here

Exit Awards

In the process of completing the studies, participants may obtain the following qualification:

- Post Graduate Certificate in Human Resource Management

  Students will be eligible for this once they have successfully completed 30 ECTS

- Post Graduate Diploma in Human Resource Management

  Students will be eligible for this once they have successfully completed 60 ECTS

- Awards

  Each module in this study programme is also is a separate Exit Award. Students will be presented with a certificate upon successfully completing each one

Visit Course Page - Click Here

www.21Academy.education

21 BUSINESS CENTRE, 20,
TRIQ IN-NUTAR EMANUEL DEBONO
NAXXAR NXR 2525
MALTA

+356 2099 5486
info@advisory21.com.mt